

Agreement
Assignment of Reproduction/Publication Rights

For consideration received I, David R. McKeen, photographer and copyright owner of the images specified in this declaration, do hereby grant reproduction and publication rights to model for use in model’s personal career promotion only. Reproduction/Publishing rights assigned to model are not transferable. That means the model cannot give permission to a magazine, for example, to publish her photos. Neither photographer nor model are authorized to sell any form of images covered by this agreement for any purpose. Images covered by this agreement consist of those photos of [Model's Name Here] (model) retouched and furnished by photographer to model on a CD or by electronic means. The model is authorized to have the images reproduced at any time the model wants them done.

Intellectual Property

The photographer (Dave McKeen) is the intellectual property owner of all images taken of the model by the photographer. That includes all electronic files including proofs and processed images and any prints. The photographer releases to the model finished images for the model’s promotional use. Such release does not change the status of intellectual property ownership. The model may not authorize any third party to publish any photos described herein for any purpose (cannot transfer intellectual property rights).

Only images processed by the photographer can be made available to the model. Unprocessed images cannot be furnished. Neither the model nor the model’s agents may publish or distribute images that have been furnished to the model as proofs. See the model release form for restrictions on photographer’s use of the images.

Where photographs taken by the photographer of the model are made available by the model or the model’s agents for others to see, an easy to read label crediting the photographer shall be placed with each image. A link to the photographer’s Web site shall be placed where others viewing the work can access it easily.

The model and the model’s agents, relatives, friends, associates or others are not authorized to alter the photographs and image files taken by the photographer. This includes creating composite images containing work done by the photographer. If processing is needed, contact the photographer to get the work done. Composite images must contain only image elements captured by the photographer.
